EBSCOhost

EBSCOhost is a powerful online reference system accessible via the Internet. It provides popular databases from leading information providers that can be searched using a common interface. The comprehensive databases range from those designed specifically for primary, middle or high school students to those designed for professional educators, business people, and health care professionals. Search EBSCOhost databases by keyword in the basic search mode, by specific fields in the advanced search mode, or by publication title using the publications tab.

Creating a My EBSCO account

If you are an individual user and interested in saving items related to your searches, you must first create a personal account with EBSCO. Once signed into your account, you will be able to save articles to folders for future use.

1) Select an appropriate EBSCOhost database.

2) Click on the "Sign in" link.

3) Click on the "create a new account" link.

4) Complete the form.

5) Click on the "Save Changes" link.

Setting up a Journal Alert
